Terrell Economic Development Corporation Names Ty Behringer as Economic Development Manager

(Terrell, Texas – June 2026) The Terrell Economic Development Corporation (TEDC) has announced the selection of Ty Behringer as the organization's new Economic Development Manager following a comprehensive national search process conducted by the TEDC Board of Directors and Search Committee. The Chason Group (TCG) collaborated with the economic development organization on the search process.

Behringer brings a strong background in economic and community development, project management, stakeholder engagement, and strategic growth initiatives within rapidly expanding Texas communities. In his new role, he will support TEDC's efforts to advance business recruitment and retention, workforce partnerships, and strategic investment initiatives that strengthen Terrell's economy and quality of place.

Coming to TEDC from the Celina Economic Development Corporation as Business Development Associate, Behringer played an active role in positioning Celina as a destination for investment and growth. His work included leading economic incentive negotiations tied to more than $115 million in private investment and the creation of more than 400 jobs. He has also supported strategic land acquisition analysis, coordinated development initiatives, and worked closely with developers, businesses, and regional partners to advance major economic development projects.

Prior to joining the Celina EDC, Behringer served in multiple roles for the City of Celina, including Assistant to the City Manager – Development Liaison and Strategic Services Analyst. During his tenure, he helped negotiate and administer commercial development incentives, supported downtown redevelopment efforts, facilitated neighborhood revitalization initiatives, and assisted with long-range strategic planning and economic analysis. His experience includes managing projects across multiple high-growth development corridors and coordinating complex initiatives involving municipal leadership, developers, and community stakeholders..

"Ty distinguished himself throughout the search process because of his strong understanding of economic development, his collaborative leadership style, and his ability to work effectively with businesses, developers, elected officials, and community stakeholders," said Carlton Tidwell, President & CEO of the Terrell Economic Development Corporation. "He brings valuable experience from one of the fastest-growing communities in the region and understands how to balance strategic growth with community priorities. We are excited to welcome Ty to the TEDC team and believe he will make an immediate positive impact on our organization and community."

Behringer said he was drawn to Terrell because of its unique position within the Dallas-Fort Worth region and the community's commitment to intentional growth and economic opportunity.

"I am honored to join the Terrell Economic Development Corporation at such an exciting time for the community," said Behringer. "Terrell has tremendous momentum and is well-positioned to capitalize on the continued growth occurring across the region. I believe successful economic development is built on strong partnerships, intentional planning, and a commitment to creating long-term value for both residents and businesses. I look forward to working alongside the TEDC Board, community leaders, businesses, and regional partners to advance strategic initiatives that will reinforce Terrell's identity for years to come.

As Economic Development Manager, Behringer will work closely with TEDC leadership and the Board of Directors to implement strategic priorities focused on business attraction, business retention and expansion, workforce development partnerships, and targeted investment initiatives. The position also includes supporting regional collaborations, conducting economic research, assisting with incentive programs, and representing TEDC in business and industry engagement efforts.

Behringer holds a Master of Business Administration with a concentration in Finance from the University of North Texas and a Bachelor of Science in Recreation, Event, and Sport Management. He has also completed professional training through the Texas Economic Development Council, including the organization's Basic Economic Development Course and Sales Tax Workshop.

TEDC leadership noted that Behringer's blend of municipal and economic development experience, combined with his strategic and collaborative approach, positions him to play an important role in advancing the organization's long-term goals for the community.
